Earlier this week, human rights defender, 25-year old Jerome Succor Aba, was detained at SFO International Airport for 28 hours while interrogated by the US Customs and Border Protection agency (CBP).

Jerome was invited by church groups and people’s organizations in the US to speak at the Ecumenical Advocacy Days in Washington D.C., at a Luncheon Forum organized by the Office of International Justice and Peace of the US Conference of Catholic Bishops, and at US Congressional offices about the human rights situation in the Philippines, particularly his native Mindanao. He also was to join other human rights defenders from the Philippines for the People’s Caravan for Peace & Justice in the Philippines organized by the International Coalition for Human Rights in the Philippines (ICHRP).

When he arrived to the US on April 18, Jerome had a valid 10-year multiple entry visa. Despite this, the CBP told Jerome that he had “no business on US soil.”

Jerome is a human rights worker that is accustomed to documenting gross violations of civil and political rights of individuals and communities throughout Mindanao. However, this is the first time, he said, that he was the direct victim of human rights violations.

“Like everyone else entering the United States,” Jerome shared, “I fell in line at [Immigration]. When it was my turn, they took my passport, and they looked at my visa that says 10 years, multiple entry to the US. Unlike the other people, an officer of CBP approached me. They called me and took me to a room by myself where there were 3 officers of Homeland Security. I said, ‘Is there something wrong? Am I in trouble here? Why am I by myself? And what is the problem?’

“I was handcuffed. It was very tight and I asked why I was handcuffed. They said I’m not entitled to my human rights. They started asking questions. They asked me, ‘Are you a terrorist? Or are you a communist?’ That was the line of questioning-- asking questions about rallies, ISIS, my views on the politics of the US, my views on Duterte’s killing of 13,000 people in his war on drugs, what were my thoughts on the relationship between the US and the Philippines.

“In another room, an empty stainless room, they took off my handcuffs while they were questioning me. I was relieved because I was in pain from the handcuffs. But, it turns out they were making me take off my clothes. [The] officers there commanded me to undress. I asserted that this is illegal, cruel, inhumane, this is a violation of human rights. I am entitled to human rights. Over and over they repeated, ‘You are not entitled to any rights.’ It was cold, and they made it colder. They brought in a very big electric fan and turned it on, pointed it at me. It was so cold and I was naked. They left me there with the fan…”

After many hours of being moved from room to room and subjected to physical and psychological torture, CBP agent Lopez brought Jerome a blank piece of paper. “He said, ‘In order to be released, sign this,’” Jerome shared, “Because I was so exhausted, I signed it. I wrote ‘UP’ to mean ‘under pressure,’ but he took the paper and made me sign another piece of paper. So I did.”

A few hours later, Jerome was back on an airplane to the Philippines. While relieved to be out of the “belly of the beast,” he was unable to rest on the plane, seeing only images of his tormentors when he closed his eyes. “When I was being interrogated, I stopped myself from crying and being emotional. I thought, I’m not going to give them that. But when I was in the plane, I couldn’t stop myself from crying.”

Jerome was greeted at the airport in Manila by lawyers, progressive congressional representatives, and fellow human rights activists. “When I saw [them], I felt relieved. They hugged me and the only thing I was able to say was, ‘They tortured me.’

CALL TO ACTION
Join us in seeking justice for Jerome and all other victims and survivors of abuse at the hands of US Customs and Border Protection by taking part in the Circle of Concern and Response. We invite you to act through STUDY, PRAYER, ADVOCACY, ENGAGEMENT, WITNESS, and GIVING. Please help us spread this effort far and wide!

ENGAGE
The People’s Caravan for Peace & Justice in the Philippines, is taking place in cities throughout the US from April 20 – May 11, 2018. The International Coalition for Human Rights in the Philippines-US (ICHRP) is organizing this tour to call for an end to the killings and US military support of human rights violations in the Philippines. Find a tour activity near you by visiting the ICHRP US Facebook page (https://www.facebook.com/ICHRPUnitedStates/).

PRAY
Our prayers and/or commitments to prayer will be compiled and included in a packet that the Caravan delegates will take with them to visits with Congressional offices and Bishops, to show the impact of Jerome’s unjust detainment. We are encouraging you to pray AND to invite (via social media, in person, or over email) 22 other individuals to engage in prayer—one for each hour that Jerome was held incommunicado:

- Gather a small group to pray in front of Federal Buildings, Customs and Border Protection, Philippine Consulates (US Embassies if not in US) and document the witness with photos or videos. If prayers are available in written form, tape them onto the doors or windows of the building(s).
- Organize a prayer group to take a moment of prayer for Justice for Jerome, mindful of the need for solidarity, resistance, and the impact this experience may have had for him and his loved ones. You may also pray for understanding, Beloved Community, safety for Jerome and those he works with, and the peace that is the result of justice.
- Individuals can offer up their prayers in many ways! Prayer speaks many languages and takes many forms. It can be offered up in the form of poetry, music, art, video, written, etc.
- Send us your prayers (Transcripts, Screenshots, links to your Videos, or a list of names committing to prayer). Send them to Rev. Jeanelle Nicolas Ablola via email to jna.design@gmail.com. In addition, when posting on social media, please use the hashtag #Justice4Jerome.
